DETAILED ACTION

1. Claim 8 is objected to because of the following informalities: in claim 8 the words are too closely spaced.

Appropriate correction is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 1,2,3,4,10,12,14,15, 17 and 18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Avanic et al(5,650,755 new cite) in view of Morino et al(5,661,441).

The reference by Avanic et al discloses a VCO resonator package (310) with circuit substrate (302) and connections to the substrate being inherent(see figure 3); a shield(314) is shown bonded to the top of the resonator package(310).

Art Unit: 2817

The reference does not show a center located cavity for the resonator, as well as a crystal type resonator, and lastly, the use of solder cream, for example, as an adhesive for the bonding to the shield.

The reference by Morino et al shows these ideas, see figure 1, and col. 2, where a cavity with walls is shown to receive the resonator package(1); use of solder cream (15) also aids to bond the package and hold it stably is noted. The particular type of resonator is not a crystal, however, this is simply another conventional resonator package that is notoriously well known in the art.

In light of the above it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to have realized that the stability of Avanic et al vibrator package is due to the soldering of the package to the shield and that any conventional adhesive(epoxy or cream solder) would be within the level of skill for one of ordinary skill in the art. ^{and reflected in the Morino et al.} The type of resonator being simple a matter of design consideration. Securing the package being the main concern. The cavity also lending to the secure placement on the substrate.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 6-9 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

6. Claims 11,13, 16 and 19 are allowed.
